ST. ALBAN'S CHURCH
Rev. J. R. Hague, Incumbent.
10 a.m., Sungday school.
7 p.m., Evensong and Sermon.

IN MEMORIAM

They went with song to battle—they were young.
Straight of limb, true of eye, sturdy and aglow.
They were staunch to the end gainst odds uncounted,
And they fell with their faces to the foe.
They shall not grow old as we that are left grow old;
Age shall not weary them nor the years condemn.

At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We shall remember them.

You are cordially welcome at St. Alban's church. Your fellowship and co-operation are earnestly desired.

THE UNITED CHURCH

The United church was crowded on Sunday evening for a service designed to commemorate not only the Armistice, but the opening of Peace Week as suggested by the League of Nations. A choir of 24 led the singing and sang an anthem. This group, under the leadership of Dr. C. Rose, may well be the beginning of Coleman regaining its former position in musical matters in the Pass. Next Sunday evening, the music will befit a memorial occasion, an extra number will be given. The junior choir made a new start on Sunday morning, with the beginning of an alto section.

A record attendance for a long time was registered at last week's meeting of the Ladies' Aid; and on Sunday the church school again nearly reached the 60 mark.

The congregation is urged to back up every effort made.

Those having no other church home are cordially invited to attend the services.

Canadians Practiced At Lethbridge on Sunday

Youth Training Movement Appoints Executive

Quiet optimism reigned among players and executives alike, after two practice sessions on Lethbridge's artificial ice on Sunday, as to the strength of the team this season.

All the imports showed up well, with Stan McKillop perhaps receiving the most attention because of his uncanny stick-handling ability. He played for Atlantic City last year, and appears to be another Benoit when it comes to stick-handling. Floyd Sanderson teamed up nicely with Bill Fraser, both boys showing the railbirds some pretty combination plays.

Coach Mike Kryschuk had the boys on the ice after the Lethbridge-Saskatoon game on Saturday night and again at 11 a.m. Sunday. All the players "let themselves go" during the two practices and according to report coach Kryschuk is highly pleased with their showing.

Flooding commenced at the arena last Friday. Should the temperature take a sudden drop the caretakers state ice will be available in 24 hours.

Sixty Members Attend First Aid Classes

First Aid classes started on Sunday in the high school with sixty members present. Dr. Rose, giving his first lecture on First Aid, was the instructor.

Officials were pleased with the large attendance and stated that should any person wish to join the classes they should see A. McCulloch, president; or J. M. Rushton, secretary.

Only four teachers remain on duty at Central school, the rest are attending teachers' conventions in Calgary and Lethbridge. Several classes are having a holiday as a result.

A line from John Brennan at Ensign, Alta., where he is C.P.R. agent, is acknowledged, also his annual subscription to the Coleman Journal. Thanks, John!

HEALTHY STATEMENT BY BLAIREMORE SPORTS ASSOCIATION

The financial statement of Blairmore Community Sports Association prepared by Mr. W. H. Chappell showed total receipts from all sources of $3,848.87, and total disbursements of $3,818.65. The heaviest item of expense was arena repairs $2,229.28; other expenses including wages $435, light, wood, coal and telephone $143.73, rink rates expended $30.27. In the receipts column membership cash dues were $1,713.85, dues by labor $131.95, cash donations, including $150 from the curling club and donations in material and labor, $1,267.18. After all expenses were paid, there was a net balance of $30.22. Blairemore is to be congratulated on the way in which it responded to support the sports association.

Curling Rink Opens Nov. 15

Urge Organization of Voluntary Rinks—Will Endeavor to Organize Ladies' League

Decision to open the curling arena on Nov. 15 has been announced. Harold Houghton, caretaker and ice maker last season, has been re-engaged.

Dues will remain the same, $8, and an aggressive drive made to increase membership. Formation of voluntary rinks will be encouraged. Ice is expected to be available the latter part of this month and all interested are asked to form rinks or place their names with A. Balloch, secretary.

A ladies' league will be given serious consideration. An advertisement elsewhere in this issue calls upon the fair sex to organize. It is hoped to have at least four rinks in order to start a league. Failing this all ladies desiring to curl will be placed on men's club rinks.

Badminton Club to Practice

The Badminton Club will meet in the Miners hall at 7:30 p.m. Sunday next, Nov. 13, for the first practice of the season. All interested will be welcomed, states President Reg. Jones, and Secretary James McDonald. A good season's sport is assured, the hall will be warmed up ready for play.

"GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT"

Hitler Will Build Defence Force That Will Maintain Peace

Wilmar, Germany.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler Sunday lectured the democracies and, speaking "as a peace-loving man," declared: "I have decided to give the German Reich a defence force that will be conducive to peace being kept."

He singled out Winston Churchill, former British first lord of the admiralty, and Arthur Greenwood, Labor front bencher in the House of Commons, for mention by name in attacking anti-Nazi influences against which Germany must be strong. He referred to British politicians generally as "umbrella carriers."

"Germany must arm intellectually, morally and materially," he said. "We are ready to disarm on condition that the war-mongers are disarmed. But just so long as this is not done I suppose they want to set a trap for us, as in 1918. But it won't happen this time, Mr. Churchill."

He said he was suspicious of reducing armaments while the rest of the world armed to the teeth and took cognizance of British Labor criticism of Nazism. Greenwood had said in parliament he hoped Nazism would be destroyed, Hitler continued: "It is my duty to see that this Reich shall not be crushed."

The chancellor spoke before 100,000 Nazis for 35 minutes in the capital of Thuringia, once a Socialist hotbed which became one of the earliest converts to Nazi doctrines.

Hilter launched his lecturing of democracies with a historical review in which he branded action by the Great War victors in disregard of Woodrow Wilson's 14 points as "the greatest betrayal of all time."

"Let democracies understand this: If they talk about rights of small peoples, they should not deny rights to big peoples," he said.

"But history has shown that democracy in practice is different from democracy in theory. Democrats can only conceive of one duty, namely, to uphold democracy with resultant liability to anybody to incite to war."

"I cannot expect them to alter their constitutions, but what the result of the German triumph in the British parliament uttered with that Nazis and Fascists be crushed and when one thinks of the possibility that his party may come once more into power, it is my duty to see that this Reich shall not be crushed."

"Let the world leave me alone. We want nothing but to get on with our work in peace."

The chancellor touched briefly on Germany's acquisition of Austria and Czechoslovakia's Sudeten areas, saying:

ing these territories had become loyal members of the greater Germany.

"We must believe in higher justice," he exclaimed, "when we see how our strenuous efforts have received their reward."

Open Door In China

U.S. Against Denunciation of Nine-Power Treaty

Washington.—Cordell Hull, secretary of state, indicated that the United States would not abide by Japan's intentions to link Japan, China and Manchukuo together politically and economically.

In a formal statement he also gave the world to understand the United States would not accept any denunciation by Japan of the nine-power treaty guaranteeing China's independence and the open door of commercial opportunities there.

He served notice the United States on the existing treaties dealing with Japan and China. The American attitude, he said, is governed by the generally accepted principles of international law, by treaties, and by principles of fair dealing and fair play among nations.

He did not indicate what action the United States would take and denied reports he was consulting with other powers to induce them to denounce their commercial treaties with Japan.

The fact Hull twice mentioned China and Japan in his short statement was interpreted to mean that, even as he will refuse to concede Japan the right to make a peace in China prejudicial to the nine-power treaty, so he will also refuse to recognize the right of China to make a peace with Japan which would injure rights of United States and other nations.

Will Need British Capital

To Develop China's Markets Even If Japan Wins War

London.—British capital will still be needed in China even if Japan wins the war and establishes complete domination over the east Asiatic mainland, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons.

"China cannot be developed into a real market without the influx of a great deal of capital. The fact so much capital is being destroyed during the war means that even more will have to be introduced after the war is over," he said.

Japan Intends To Be The Dominating Factor In East Asia

Tokyo.—Japan's foreign office spokesman disclosed Japan considers obsolete the nine-power treaty which guarantees territorial integrity of China, and intimated Japan may do so.

The spokesman revealed Japan is considering repudiation of the treaty signed at Washington in 1922, with a new three-power pact among Japan, her puppet-empire of Manchukuo and a new regime in China, envisioning displacement of the Chiang Kai-Shek government.

Such a new pact ostensibly would be to guarantee China's territorial integrity after cessation of the present Japanese-Chinese war.

"Japan considers the nine-power pact obsolete. Whether we will denounce it or withdraw has not yet been decided," the spokesman said.

The government is examining the advantages of creation of a tri-power pact.

Earlier, Premier Fumimaro Konoe's announcement of a "new order in east Asia" in which Japan is to have the dominating role, was believed to foreshadow a demand for revision of the treaty.

The spokesman hinted Japan might make a definite statement on this line when she replies to a United States note protesting against what Washington termed interference with American interests in China.

When a reply could be expected was not known.

(The foreign office disclosure came soon after the state department in Washington made public a reminder that last year's nine-power conference in Brussels had served notice final settlement of the Chinese-Japanese war must be "satisfactory to the conference powers."

The reminder was among hitherto unpublished documents concerning the conference which sought unsuccessfully to end war in the far east.

(Canada was represented at the Brussels conference.)

An official statement issued Nov. 2 outlined Japan's aims in the current war as creation of an economic and political bloc embracing Japan, Manchukuo and China for domination of East Asia.

In a broadcast, the premier asserted the new order "has for its foundation a tri-partite relationship of mutual aid and co-operation between Japan, Manchukuo and China" in political, economic, cultural and other fields. Its object is to secure international justice."

The reference to "international justice" and a remark Japan was considering other powers will "correctly appreciate her aims and policy and will adapt their attitude to the new conditions" was interpreted by observers as meaning, among other things, revision of international treaties as they affect Japan.

This point of view was emphasized in the newspaper Asahi Shimbun, which commented: "Foreign powers will henceforth be unable to discuss East Asia without reaching an understanding with Japan. Whether they wish it or not, foreign powers will be compelled to give Japan's foreign policy a guiding position in

Spanish Boat Sunk

Insurgent Ship Shells Victim Close To Cromer

Cromer, Norfolk, Eng.—The Spanish insurgent motor vessel Nadir shelled and sank the Spanish government freighter Cantabria in the North Sea, a few miles outside British territorial waters.

Survivors of the freighter, brought to Cromer near where the one-sided fight took place, said the Cantabria defied an order to surrender, signalled from the Nadir.

The Nadir then shelled the Cantabria for about three hours. Finally the battered hull caught fire. The crew and passengers were taken off.

A coastal lifeboat took off the captain, his wife and their two children, and the second steward. The captain, speaking through an interpreter, said there were 37 members of the crew and passengers, including three women. Five crew members and a majority of the survivors were taken off by the Nadir and 11 by the London-bound steamer, Patterson.

The captain said he knew of no casualties but said the Cantabria sank just after he left the ship. She was 5,649 tons with her home port at Santander, now insurgents' held. The vessel was owned by the Mid-Atlantic Shipping Company of London.

He described the Nadir's armament as five guns, which fired broadsides after broadside into the Cantabria.

The Pattersonian, a 315-ton steamer from Newcastle, later landed 11 of the Cantabria's crewmen from life boats at Great Yarmouth. Police had ambulances and taxis ready but none of the crewmen was injured although all suffered from exhaustion.

Disposal of those taken aboard the Nadir from a lifeboat was not known, but she carried 11 sailors of the North Sea after the bombardment. She refused to answer wireless demands of nearby trawlers and steamships for an explanation of the attack.

The freighter was overtaken and shelled just outside the three-mile limit and the thunder of guns was easily heard on shore. Scores of persons saw the flashes of the firing and smoke rolling from the merchantman.

The location just outside the territorial waters prevented the admiral from sending a warship to the scene, though scores of fishing trawlers and other ships drew as near as they dared. The admiral followed reports of the uneven encounter closely.

Arabs Give Warning

Threaten British Residents Of Palestine With Reprisals

Jerusalem.—An Arab revolutionary leader warned British residents of Palestine they could expect "reprisals" similar to those he threatened against United States nationals.

The threat to Americans in the Holy Land was based on what the revolutionary leader, Arif Abdul Razik, called their pro-Jewish attitude.

The statement said:

"The vexing daily murders committed by the British army against peaceful Arab citizens will not continue any more without being answered."

"Consequently the penalty will fall on the heads of all Britishers residing in Palestine whether officers or civilians."

"You have started a fire and you will have to endure the consequences until your army discontinues its barbarous actions."

Canada's Wheat Policy

Should Keep Growing Wheat Of The Highest Quality, Say United Grain Growers

Calgary.—Canada's wheat policy must be to keep growing wheat and of the highest quality possible, R. S. Law, president, told 300 delegates, representing 30,000 shareholders, at the opening of the annual meeting of the United Grain Growers Limited here.

He described the Nadir's armament as five guns, which fired broadsides after broadside into the Cantabria.

The Pattersonian, a 315-ton steamer from Newcastle, later landed 11 of the Cantabria's crewmen from life boats at Great Yarmouth. Police had ambulances and taxis ready but none of the crewmen was injured although all suffered from exhaustion.

Mr. Law said the company's debt was reduced during the past year by $197,500 and now stands at $2,886,900. Against capital assets of $10,928,330, reserves have been provided to the amount of $4,472,575, making the net capital assets $6,455,754. Equity of shareholders totals $3,222,371. Total made up of: paid up capital stock, $3,189,371; general reserve, $1,710,282 and capital and surplus $322,717.

Payment of a dividend was not practical, he added, but shareholders in the company had received a return on their investment of more than $4,000,000 or more than $1,000,000 in excess of paid up capital.

The company operates 440 country elevators across the prairie and terminals at Port Arthur and Vancouver. It also conducts an extensive sale of farm supplies.

Mr. Law told the delegates that when the farmer's ability to carry on is threatened by low world prices, Dominion government assistance must in the national interest be extended in the same way as has been done this year. He warned against relying on any international agreement for dividing up the world's wheat market on a quota basis.

"It is the hope of the company," added Mr. Law, "that the Dominion government will carry out proposals for a Canadian wheat institute to work for enlargement of markets for Canadian wheat."

Premier Chamberlain And Viscount Halifax To Pay Visit to France

Mail Flights Across Canada

Coast-To-Coast Service May Be Linked Up Next Month

Winnipeg.—Night mail express flights between Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, linking Canada for the first time from coast-to-coast on a fast, through service, may be started before Christmas. Philip G. Johnson, vice-president of the Trans-Canada Airlines, said here.

Replacement of the present daily express service on the eastern section with a fast night service awaits completion of landing lights at the Malton airport, Toronto, and at intermediate fields where the route is now 90 per cent completed, Johnson said.

Passenger service will be started in the western section, Winnipeg to Vancouver, when the four new radio ranges, now being installed in the Rocky Mountains, are completed.

Meanwhile flight schedules are being completed as regularly as weather permits on the whole line from Vancouver to Montreal.

Buy U.S. Planes

Australia Is Ordering Fifty Bombers For Early Delivery

Canberra.—Premier Lyons announced in the house of representatives that Australia immediately was ordering 50 bombers similar to 200 planes ordered by Great Britain from the United States.

Premier Lyons, faced with a Labor motion of censure during debate on defence policies, made the announcement the planes were ordered as necessary insurance against possible further delay in delivery of British planes ordered some time ago.

He also said the Australian government was doubling the volunteer militia to 70,000 and added further steps would be taken to strengthen the country's defence.

War Crisis Expensive

London.—The international crisis over Czechoslovakia last month cost Great Britain £5,500,000 ($27,500,000) in extraordinary expenditures, Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons.

First deliveries had been made of Britain's new 4.5-inch gun which has been described as the most powerful anti-aircraft gun in the world.

"Henceforth we must pay the same attention as a nation to our anti-aircraft defences as we have paid to the maintenance of the fleet," Mr. Hore-Belisha declared.

Mr. Hore-Belisha and Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, bore the brunt of the government's defence during the one-day debate against attacks by Hugh Dalton and Herbert Morrison of the Labor front bench.

Mr. Dalton criticized the war office for "lack of preparation" and for deficiencies in necessary equipment despite the millions of pounds sterling voted for rearmament in recent years.

He claimed half the guns in position in London during the week of the German-Czechoslovak crisis could not have fired a shot at an enemy plane. Some lacked vital parts, he declared, others had defective parts which others had no ammunition to make and no two-pounders.

In addition, Mr. Hore-Belisha said the territorial army had been rapidly increased in personnel in the past three years, and the country's armament industry, which practically did not exist a few years ago, had been scrapped following the Great War, could not keep pace with an eight-fold expansion of military manpower.

His critics, he said, should remember Great Britain had been rearming for only three years, a period insufficient to produce a perfect war machine.

Mr. Hore-Belisha said full requirements of 3.7-inch anti-aircraft guns would be supplied by midsummer 1939, and two-pounders for use against low-flying planes would go into production by June.

London.—Prime Minister Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, will visit Paris Nov. 23 as guests of the French government, it was announced. They will stay until Nov. 25.

The invitation came from the French government and the two statesmen promptly accepted. No details as to the probable line of discussion were divulged but it is presumed the broad question of Anglo-French relations in the light of changing Europe will be the main topic.

The visit will in part return the two trips to London made by Prime Edward Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet during the Czech-German crisis. Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Halifax will be accompanied by their wives.

It is doubtful if Anglo-French relations ever were stronger and the two governments are determined to keep them that way. But changing Europe has brought many developments that need consideration.

For instance there is the question of the French alliances which originally were designed to encircle Germany. Many observers believe Chancellor Hitler smashed this encircling movement at Munich and the question now arises whether France will abandon that policy or seek fresh allies.

Bound up with this is the Franco-Russian alliance and the four-power guarantee of Czech territory in which France and Great Britain are vitally interested because it takes them into southeastern Europe, the first time for Britain.

Critics of Mr. Chamberlain's peace deal with Hitler claim it shattered the French plan for winning security through alliances but his defenders say it was made with the concurrence of the French government.

Germany's demands for return of war-lost colonies are almost certain to be discussed at length. In many quarters this subject is regarded as the most likely to upset European peace again and France is affected because she holds portions of the Cameroons and Togoland in Africa under League of Nations mandate, Britain administering the remainder of both territories.

Britain Plans To Embark On Enlarged Defence Program

London.—Lessons of the September crisis fresh in mind, the British government will embark on an enlarged defence program with emphasis of split-level shelters and general evacuation from over-crowded cities in case of war.

The government made this plain to the House of Commons when beating back a Labor motion which charged the government with failure to protect the civilian population from air raid dangers.

The house defeated the motion by a vote of 355 to 130. Then the government's amendment stating the house welcomed the new program, which will be administered by Sir John Anderson, lord privy seal, was approved by a show of hands.

Lester Hore-Belisha, secretary for war, frankly told the house of deficiencies in anti-aircraft defences, of guns without sights, without ammunition, and shortages of equipment, stores and transport.

The war secretary promised to correct this situation in the shortest possible time, declaring his determination to build up the national defences to the highest peak of efficiency.

His critics, he said, should remember Great Britain had been rearming for only three years, a period insufficient to produce a perfect war machine.

Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, who now turns air raids' precautions measures over to Sir John Anderson, regarded as an energetic driving administrator, declared:

"This country can make as good a system of passive defence as any in the world.

"We are determined to make it effective, and to see that it can play its full part, with a substantial increase of the air force and a greatly increased system of anti-aircraft guns, so as a result of this triple effort we can go far to regain the insular security of this country."

Current Comment on Local Events

YEARS AGO it was considered an admission of failure to seek relief or charity. Of course, exceptional cases of distress were excepted. But the general rule was that if a man couldn't get work, it was just too bad. There was a very small amount of relief given by local governments.

NOW IT is looked on as a right, and abuse is made of it to such an extent that with many it has become a racket, for which the working ratepayer pays. The cost is enormous, running into millions of dollars. Because people do not pay the cost directly, but through indirect taxes, they do not realize what it is costing them. In Coleman we know what it is costing the ratepayers for local relief, because every month the accounts are placed on the table, and they are no small amount from a limited tax collection of less than $16,000.

TOO MUCH paternalism has been shown partly for political purposes. We have the relief seeker who has become a "professional" at the job, equally as much as the "bums" and the "panhandlers" who are continually seeking the price of a "cup o' coffee." Many of them deserve help, but there are many also who as long as they can get help without working for it, will continue to do so.

AND SO prevalent has this attitude become of expecting governments to provide all one's needs, that some young people think that all their sport and recreational costs should be borne by anybody except themselves. In plain words they expect others to pay for their sport. There is a need of a spirit of ruggedness and independence being developed which was the foremost trait of the people who pioneered this country. Instead, there are many who want to be carried around on a feather bed, with everything provided from soup to nuts. The Boy Scout ideal is to train boys to shift for themselves and to earn the money to provide the things they need. Other so-called youth organizations might well take a lesson.

IF PUBLIC opinion favors the acquiring of the miners hall, or the building of an auditorium, then a central place would always be available. But it could not be run without revenue, any more than the schools can be maintained without the collection of taxes.

TWENTY years ago gladness came to the hearts of all when the Great War ended, at 11 a.m. on Nov. 11, 1918. Many remember it, too, as the period when the influenza epidemic was at its worst. Little short of one third of an average lifetime has slipped away; a new generation has grown up who know not the agonizing experiences of war, and the army of veterans is fast diminishing. To many the day is just another holiday; to others who suffered bereavement it is a sacred day, commemorative of the sacrifice of lives, which one at times questions—did they fight and die in vain?

THE JOURNAL has never declined to give publicity to any deserving local cause, be it churches, sporting organizations or on behalf of individuals who may be deserving of consideration. Much space is given cheerfully, and the expense of the typesetting of course is borne by the publisher, for workmen cannot be expected to set it up without pay, no matter how deserving the cause may be. But we do draw the line when someone with lack of good sense comes with a publicity request and it is found that the printed stationery or other material they have required is done elsewhere.

Then is the time when patience and long suffering cease to be a virtue. One publisher saved for a week all the free publicity requests that he received, and had he published them, they would have cost about double the amount of revenue he received from paid advertising. And it wasn't a small paper either. So, kind and well meaning friends, take notice that newspapermen cannot live on free publicity alone, any more than man can live by bread alone.

FROM DALE CARNEGIE'S BOOK,
"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS"

"It is the individual who is not interested in his fellow men who has the greatest difficulties in life and provides the greatest injury to others. It is from among such individuals that all human failures spring."

"Jim Farley discovered early in life that the average man is more interested in his own name than he is in all the other names on earth put together. Remember that name and call it easily, and you have paid him a very subtle and very effective compliment. But forget it, or mis-spell it, and you have placed yourself at a sharp disadvantage."

ANY DAY A FISH DAY

YOU NEED TWO NEWSPAPERS

You enjoy your weekly. It gives you news of your own friends and neighbors. It deals intimately with the problems of your own district and works assiduously for its welfare. As your home newspaper it has first claim on your interest and your loyalty—and rightly so.

But, while your weekly gives you a résumé of the news beyond your own district and, within its scope, deals capably with world events, it cannot possibly keep you in touch with every matter of importance. Frankly it makes no claims to do so.

To have an intelligent appreciation of what is happening in the world today you must read daily newspaper. A good daily gives you all the news. No matter what your chief interest may be, world events, national conditions, sports or markets, it covers them all. And more than news. Special articles, features of particular interest to women and pages for the children make a daily newspaper welcome in every home.

By all means read your weekly. It deserves your interest and support. But, remember, you and your family need a daily newspaper, too.

Social Credit Wins Athabasca

(T. B. Windrose)

Edmonton, Nov. 8.—The Social Credit party won the Athabasca by-election Monday, scoring the only victory it has achieved in the five non-acclamation by-elections since the party went into power in the 1935 general election. C. H. Tade, who was elected to the seat in 1935, won it again for Social Credit by defeating Rayner Whiteley, Liberal candidate, by a majority of around 200.

When campaigning ended at the week end, it was expected generally that the vote would be very close. Neither side was very confident of victory; the Liberals, in fact, believed that the odds against them were too great to allow a victory, and said that undoubtedly Athabasca was the riding most likely to return a Social Credit member of the ridings in the province.

They said that if the Alberta machine could not win in Athabasca, it could not win anywhere in Alberta. Factors in the government's favor, they said, included these:

The fact that the by-election was set for an off-season in the north meant that many business men, miners, fliers, trappers and traders were absent from the riding.

Economic conditions in the north have not been good recently, and the Social Credit promises of something-for-nothing were therefore likely to find favor.

Social Credit propaganda, including speaking tours by Aberhart and most of his cabinet, and flood of copies of Leader, Lucifer Maynard's own weekly newspaper, edited purposely for the electors, reached a new high mark;

Much provincial road work and Aberhart's announcement of a write-off of arrears of taxation, the government came at just the right time for Social Credit purposes.

It is not expected that the newly-elected member for Athabasca will be able to take his seat in the legislature session which opens next Tuesday, Dec. 15, until some short time to complete election formalities.

Reasons for the decision of the Privy Council declaring illegal the Aberhart government's attempt last fall to impose maximum rates of $2000-$3000 on banks operating in Alberta, in addition to the more than $200,000 which the banks already pay to the province, were made known over the weekend by the Privy Council in London, the Alberta attorney-general not having divulged the causes previously.

The judgment ruling out the tremendous tax was handed down in London in July. And while the Supreme Court of Canada had likewise ruled it invalid. Stating the reason for its decision, the Privy Council explained, in a statement issued by Lord Maugham, the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, that the government said:

"Under the guise of discriminatory taxation in a province, it would be easy not only to impair, but even to render wholly nugatory the exclusive legislative authority of the Dominion over the creation of cities and subjects mentioned in section 91 of the British North America Act) by making them valueless . . . No one would suggest that a similar argument for the assailant (that is, the Alberta government) did not suggest—that legislation of this character would be valid . . ."

"It is plain the taxation is aimed simply at banks, including savings banks, and with the result that savings and savings banks are within the exclusive legislative authority of the Dominion. On the other hand, it is strange to find a province singling out in order to raise money for provincial purposes, banks and savings banks and no other wealthy corporation body or person in the province."

It became definitely known during the last few days that the Alberta government was planning some form of refunding plan for the province's $160,000,000 debt. Provincial Treasurer Hon. Solon Low had been absent from the city for some time, but would never admit that his visits to the east and south had anything to do with refunding.

Unexpectedly it became known that refunding plans had been placed in the case of two other provinces, neither of them widely known to financial interests. One is a Californian, Harold B. Reed, of Los Angeles, president of the Municipal Council of the City of Los Angeles. The other is J. L. Sours, whose address in orders-in-council passed by the cabinet providing for payment of expenses for the two "experts" is given as California until recently, it is stated.

The cabinet passed special warrants to provide slightly less than $2,000 for the use of these "experts" at first.

It is not expected in informed financial circles that the government of William Aberhart will ever get far with refunding schemes. The people who believe the theory involved in the bonds have not the necessary confidence in Alberta's present administration's integrity. It is declared among them. "The credit of the province has been ruined and must first be restored before refunding will succeed."

HERE are three words out of five forming a sentence:
"MILK IS MILK."

WHAT are the other two words? PERHAPS you will say, "Milk and them IF NOT, you will find them on a Milk Bottle in a Store Window."

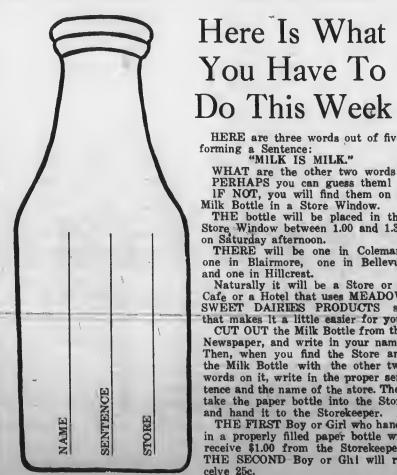

THE bottle will be placed in the Store Window between 1:00 and 1:30 Saturday afternoon.

THERE will be one in Coleman, one in Blairmore, one in Bellevue and one in Hillcrest.

Naturally it will be a Store or a Garage, a place that handles DAIRY and SWEET DAIRIES PRODUCTS so that makes it a little easier for you.

CUT OUT the Milk Bottle from the Newspaper, and write in your name. Then, when you find a Store and the Milk Bottle with the other four words on it, write in the proper sentence and the name of the store. Then take the paper bottle into the Store and hand it to the Storekeeper.

THE FIRST Boy or Girl who hands in a paper bottle filled paper bottle will receive $1.00 from the Storekeeper; THE SECOND Boy or Girl will receive 25c.

Soviet Russia's plan to throw up a protective wall of colonists along the far eastern frontiers facing Japan was reflected in statistics showing Vladivostok's population has increased 150 per cent since 1928.

Demand for tickets for the Olympic games to be held at Helsinki, Finland in 1940 has been so great a sellout is anticipated by J. W. Rangal, president of the Olympic organizing committee.

The Japanese finance ministry called in one-sen copper coins and put aluminum coins in circulation in their stead. This will permit an annual saving of 900 tons of copper, which the army needs.

Troops Leave Spain

Reported Franco Admits That Canadians Are The Best Fighters

Mrs. Becky Ewen, national organizer of the friends of the Mackenzie Papineau Battalion, said that about 800 Canadians are being demobilized from ranks of the Spanish Loyalist forces and will be in their Canadian homes by Christmas.

Mrs. Ewen said the committee was making plans to rehabilitate the men and the committee is campaigning for $50,000. Said General Franco, leader of the insurgent forces, had declared unwillingly that Canadians had proven the most stubborn fighters in the entire war in Spain.

Mrs. Johnson, Widely Traveled, Had Many Accomplishments

Although blind from her 15th year, Mrs. Alice Adkins Johnson, who died in New York recently, was a well-known explorer and during her life learned to speak French, German, Italian and Spanish through conversation.

Mrs. Johnson accompanied her husband in hazardous scientific expeditions in Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia.

Despite her blindness she gathered vivid impressions of her travels and in 1935 published a book of verse entitled "Fog Phantoms and Other Poems."

Voice Is Recorded

Queen's University Has Record Of President Roosevelt's Speech

President Roosevelt's voice has been added to the historic treasures of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

The "voice," a set of records, is that of the President accepting an honorary degree from the university and assuring Canada the United States would not stand idly by if the Dominion faced invasion by a foreign nation.

Four records record the entire convocation ceremony at the university, prior to inauguration of the Thousand Islands Bridge at Ivy Lea, Ont., in August.

Detectives In Medical Work

New Discovered Some Dyes Will Cause Skin Diseases

Skin diseases that no one ever heard of are breaking out through industry. Why they appear and the medical detective work that catches them were described at New York to the American College of Surgeons in a report on occupational skin diseases by Louis Schwartz, of the United States Public Health Service. They do not always remain confined to workers. Take the story of butter yellow, a dye. It had never been known as a skin irritant, Dr. Schultz said.

"In fact, it was thought so innocuous that it had been used to color margarine," he said.

The health service skin disease detectives discovered its new role when they were called in by a manufacturer of wrist watches. Complaints, and law suits, were charging that his wrist watch straps were causing skin troubles.

There was a new feature about these straps. They were jet black and sweat-proof. The health detectives sent them to both a leather research institute and to a skin specialist to see whether they contained a skin irritant.

Both reported back there was no irritant.

Next, the medical detectives went to the makers of the leather and the dyes. They injected wrists with samples of the leather both dyed and undyed. Only the dyed leather showed bad effects.

There were several dyes. Skin tests of these showed that butter yellow was irritating when it got on the skin. The yellow had been used along with a black dye to produce the jet black shade. The black dye alone gave only blue black.

When butter yellow was eliminated in favor of different yellow dyes, there was no more strap trouble and no more chemical was tagged with a warning—"In-medical-industrial" caution.

On the trail is more difficult because all the chemicals used are harmless to the skin.

Offer Scholarships

Educational Program That For Canadian Pacific Railway Apprentices

Two scholarships providing for free tuition at McGill University were offered by the Canadian Pacific Railway subject to competitive examination to apprentices and other male employees under 21 who are enrolled on the permanent staff of the company and to minor sons of employees.

D. C. Coleman, vice-president, Canadian Pacific Railway, announced the scholarships, which are part of a broad educational program sponsored by the company, and explained that they cover: Faculty of engineering, chemical, civil, mechanical or electrical engineering, four years' tuition on senior matriculation, or five years (including one year in the faculty of arts and science) on junior matriculation; architecture, five years' tuition in the school of architecture; Faculty of arts and science, four years' tuition in the arts division, or the school of commerce.

Candidates will be required to write the special entrance scholarship examination in March and April, 1939, each writing an English essay and three other papers. Results of the examination and the school record of the candidates will determine the winners.

Full information can be obtained from F. J. Curtis, superintendent of pensions and staff registrar, Windsor, Montreal, and from the registrar of McGill University,蒙特利尔。

Heals Burns Without Scar

Chemical Successfully Used In Derived From Injured Yeast Cells

A chemical product of injured yeast cells has been successfully used at charity hospitals to cure burns quickly without the growth of scar tissue.

The remedy is a by-product of a new method of tissue growth discovered at the Institution Divi, Clinimati, O.

Physicians treat common yeast and add a salt solution. The mixture is exposed to lethal ultra-violet rays and the healing chemical filtered off.

Not only are burns healed quickly by the yeast remedy, physicians said, but the growth of skin is considerably hastened.

The average temperature of burning buildings is 1,700 degrees Fahrenheit, because brass melts at this heat, and it is generally found not melted or just on the verge.

For all their investments in streamlining, the railroads are getting nowhere fast.

NEW JUMPER-FROCK WITH BOLERO

By Anne Adams

The perfect wardrobe "standby" for every young girl is Anne Adams' three-piece Pattern 4839. You've many color and fabric choices this fall, so why not pick a teal blue synthetic crepe for bolero and jumper, with the blouse cotton and by contrast braids? And so that cold days won't catch your daughter unprepared, stitch up another jumper in a cozy wool flannel. You'll find the bolero will effectively make itself, for the dimensions of the Sewing Instructor are so clear, and the design has a minimum of seams. Winsome isn't it, with that trimmings of piping and buttons sparkling as trimming?

Pattern 4839 is available in girls' and junior sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Sizes 6, 8, 10 ensemble, 12, 14 and 16, 18 yards 54 inch fabric; jumper, alone, 1 1/2 yards 54 inch fabric.

Old Door In Abbey

May Have Led To Cell Of Hermit Of Westminster

The site of the cell of the famous "Hermit of Westminster," credited with an important role in the history of the early Tudor Kings, was believed discovered in Westminster Abbey.

Lawrence E. Tanner, keeper of the museum and library of the Abbey, disclosed that during the Spring cleaning he had found a window and door near the Poc's Corner of the Abbey. The door had been blocked for an unknown number of years, but Mr. Tanner concluded from old records that it had led outside to a cell in which an elderly monk or holy man lived in retirement.

Mr. Tanner said that Henry VI probably had passed through that door the night his father, Henry IV, died, March 20, 1413, and might have spent the night there with the hermit, who received credit for reforming the wild young Prince.

New Magic Spray

Spectacular Results Are Claimed In Growing Plants

A "magic" new spray which grows larger flowers was announced to the United States Academy of Sciences. The bigger flowers are only one of the spectacular results of spraying this mixture on plants. It also makes possible new hybrids—that is, crosses in breeding plants—realizing a long-sought goal of agricultural scientists.

The spray is an emulsion of oil, mixed with colchicine, which has been a standard medical remedy for gout for nearly 2,000 years. Colchicine is extracted from meadow saffron.

A year ago Dr. Albert F. Blakeslee, of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, a station for experimental evolution at Cold Spring Harbor, New York, announced to the academy discovery that colchicine would cause strange changes in plants. It doubled their chromosomes, and the substances that govern heredity.

Since then the oil spray has been developed as a means of applying the colchicine and Dr. Blakeslee, with E. W. Sinnott and H. E. Warmke, reported the first practical results obtained on more than 40 species of plants.

The oil holds the colchicine on the plant tissues until it can penetrate buds or young stems are sprayed. On the sprayed parts the leaves become a deeper green. Fruits become shorter and stouter.

The flowers grow larger. In some species this blossoming is so great—sometimes 25 per cent—that the spraying has immediate commercial value for floriculturists. The seeds from these larger flowers are larger and fewer.

The big flowers and "stoutened" parts grow on the same plant along side many small flowers and slender parts. The seeds from the colchicine-sprayed part of the plant grow permanently larger flowers, and a plant that is permanently different from its parent.

East And West

Facing Of Reality All Round

Things Necessary

Most business men in the East wish to see a resumption of immigration. They wish to see our farms lands all taken up and cultivated. Logically, then, they should wish to see Western agriculture sufficiently prosperous to make it attractive to new settlers. The way not to do that is to make Western producers packhorses for other interests of one kind or another. Even more important than bringing in new settlers is the need for preventing too many of the farmers' sons from leaving the land, by giving them something to live for and showing them something to have some prospect.

If the Western people are to be told that they must fend for themselves, it is quite clear that some of our Eastern friends will have to change their ways and stop trying to impose tribute which makes conditions in these provinces harder and more discouraging. It is said that we should face realities. That is sound advice. There should be a facing of realities all around.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Medical Science Advancing

Will Do Better Work If Another War Should Come

More good tidings! From military medical circles comes the announcement that "the next war" will see greater achievements in the preservation of manpower by medicine and surgery than any previous war in history.

Where Medical Science will shine in particular is in the protection of wounded soldiers from death by infection, the maintenance of good health in the camp and the field, and the repair of shattered bodies. More wounded men will be able to return to the slaughter after brief hospitalization than ever before.

The greatest source of advantage, according to the sources quoted, will be in the preventive field. It is nice to know in these worrisome days that at least somebody's efforts toward the prevention of something have a strong chance of success. Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 13

THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE

Golden text: Thou shalt not kill. Exodus 20:13. Whosoever hatcheth his brother is a murderer. 1 John 3:15. Lesson: Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-26, 38-42. Devotional reading: Isaiah 11:6-9.

Explaining And Comments

The Sixth Commandment: the Law of Life. Exodus 20:13: Then shalt not kill. Exodus 20:13. The Hebrew word translated "kill" is not the usual word for killing, either in the English Version (not the American) translates the sentence, "Thou shalt do no murder." The prohibition does not mean that killing is wrong, but that killing who we call a murderer. One who kills a man in order to save his own life or the lives of others, or who kills another accidentally, is charged with manslaughter, not murder. One who commits murder is charged with murder.

Christ's Enlargement of the Commandment: Matthew 5:21-26. Christ did not tell his disciples that they must not kill; he took that law for granted, and went farther, saying that they must not even covet. And so the new law given by Christ forbids the breaking of the law in thought; it traces the sin back to its source and forbids even anger. "Anger is not the anger of man; sometimes it is the angry deed of murder." The hand must not strike the murderous blow," said Moses. "The thought dwells upon the possibility of striking the blow is equally guilty," said Christ.

A Popular Pastime

Thousands Of Women Take Out Permits For Fishing

Add fishing to the mounting list of manliest things that women are doing.

"It's amazing," said Charles Jackson, acting director of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, as he argued for statistics in a newly completed report. Many States, he explained, allow minors and their children to fish without bothering to buy a license. Yet our figures show that 89,000 women and children, armed with tackle and pole, bought permits and assaulted this heretofore stronghold of the outdoor man," he said.

The acting commissioner said most of the women did their fishing accompanied by their husbands, sweethearts, fathers or brothers.

"Nevertheless," he added, "there are quite a few women who like nothing better than to get away from it all and go out for some quiet fishing."

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

by DR. J. W. S. McCULLOUGH

TO LIVE LONG, EAT WISELY

For old people, hard-boiled eggs are about as digestible as clay pigeons. So says Dr. Martin in his article in the last issue of "Health" on how to attain a normal old age. Periodic health examinations are the best preventive medicine. Double reading and his double reading act as one of the principal factors in living long and comfortably. To live we must eat, he points out—to live long we must not eat.

Dr. Martin says old people cannot stand the gastronomic feats of youth. The average man eats twice as much as he did when he was a boy, and the excess fuel is like useless weight. Eat slowly—Plethorah—eat in moderation. If he avoids the risky gradients of repetition and the sharp curves of hyperactivity, he can attain a healthy old age.

"With age, bodily growth has ceased, but the amount of food required for the diet must be reduced. We can easily do this by eating less. This present obesity, which is so common, is merely the result of neglect of previous diet. We must grow older, growing faster as we get older in years. The human stove wears out from the task of cooking food for millions of extra fat cells.

It is all very well to advise on diet, which is easily carried out when one can supplement it with character, self-control, restraint and moderation.

It is a rare, free, fare from ear, is perhaps a dull life, and one is apt to get introspective and hipped on the subject of diet.

And what is going to tell you in detail what kind of diet you should take. You know already that meats are for the young, and starches for the old; that cereals are good, steamed and boiled; that vegetables are the finest old-age food; that milk, preferably pasteurized, has all the elements of a good diet; that cheese is better than Stilton; and that butter, buttermilk and junket are useful."

The art of living, this eminent surgeon doctor says, is not a pastime for the rich, but a combination of work and leisure, of labor and recreation—such a control of eating, drinking and making merry that man need not die tomorrow. And so prevention is the order of the day.

Tragedy Of The Sea

Ship's Cat Is Rescued When Vessel Founders After Storm

The story of a ship's cat saved by the captain, who popped it into a laundry bag and dove into the sea from a blazing schooner, was disclosed in New York when the rescued crew of the Pioneer arrived on the liner American Banker.

The Pioneer, a Gloucester schooner owned by Captain Hans Milton rocked helplessly for three days 400 miles off Halifax after a hurricane, and finally foundered.

The crew of the ship taking water, the crew soaked blankets in gasoline, ignited them and ran them to the top of the mast. The schooner caught fire, and was burning brightly when the American Banker hove to on Oct. 2.

The last man off was Captain Milton, who died with the cat and the ship's sextant.

The cat was an unnamed mascot which Seaman Carl Carlson of the crew bought in Norfolk, Va., for a nickel from a stranded sailor.

Captain Milton said an unidentified vessel had passed and ignored them 24 hours before they were rescued.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued

Hammond swiftly crossed the lowland toward Loon creek. The workers along the stream passed in a blur. Far ahead he sighted two men walking along the opposite bank. Hammond began to run. Then, disregarding the rough bridge ahead, he plunged into the stream. Waist deep, he swerved through it and clambered out the other side. Then, dripping, he turned back.

Lew Snade turned his weak face at the sound of his approach. Then suddenly gray-haired, he begged:

"Let me alone—let me alone!"

Hammond had growled. His big arms had outstretched; now he was on the man, bending him in his grasp.

"Give me that money!" he commanded.

"Look here!" Koshing exclaimed, as he turned back. "What's all this about?"

Hammond gave no heed.

"Hear me!" he shouted at Lew Snade. "Give me that money!"

"You're all wrong. I haven't got any money!" The weak-featured Snade had caught the distended wrists of the miner and was hanging to them desperately. Hammond hewed his heavy shoulders; Snade rose in his grasp, legs dangling querulously like those of a dummy.

"Shall I choke it out of you?" he asked. Quickly he threw the man from him, then rushed him for a final grip. His muscles were rigidly tensed. Snade struck out at him, wildly. Hammond gave no evidence that he felt the blows. Now his hands, distorted with muscle, plowed deep into Snade's throat.

"Look out, Jack!" Kenning shouted. "You'll kill him!"

"What of it?" growled the prospector. Then to Snade, "Give me that money!" Lew Snade writhed helplessly, gasping. "You know what I mean; that money you stole from Jeanne Towers." Lew Snade hesitated only a second longer. Then he raised his weak hands and pointed to his throat. Slowly, Hammond relaxed his grip. The man staggered about, with sagging knees. "Well, get it! Don't stand there stalling. Get out that money!"

Snade, still reeling, pawed for his pockets. Currency, the nuggets, the phial of gold dust; slowly he passed them over into the waiting hands of Jack Hammond. The prospector turned to Bruce Kenning.

"What's this rat to you?"

"Why—noting. We were just talking about a job."

"Be sure it's never anything more than that." Black with rage, he turned to the gasping Snade. "Now you—get over there on the Alaskan side. And stay there. Do you understand?"

Slowly the man began to move away, in the direction of the uncompleted buildings of Around the World Annie's dance hall.

A half hour later, his clothing still soggy from the crossing of the creek, he walked slowly down toward Key's claim. Something of calmness had come now, calmness and amazement. For the first time in his life, he had wanted to kill someone. He did not know why. All he could realize was that a blind, murderous rage had held him, until at last Jeanne Towers money was safe in his hands and he was hurrying back to her cabin with it.

CHAPTER VII.

Around the World Annie's stampede passed on the streets of Spokane Lake upon an important mission. Summer had come now, with its hot days, and almost incessant light; Annie was dressed for it. Timmy Moon had brought her quite a wardrobe on his last trip and Annie was displaying a sample. A long period of expenditure was over; now she could announce to this little northern world that she was about to reap the profits.

Now and then Around the World Annie paused in supreme survey, for she was here on business. Preceding her, as she went through town, were two men with hammers, an arm full of placards, printed in Vancouver, and a mouthful of tacks. Gradually they were turning the drabness of cabin exteriors to screaming blasts of white and scarlet:

—GRAND OPENING—

Whooper, Alaska—Thursday, July 4

LET THE EAGLE SCREAM
COME OVER TO ALASKA
and

TWIST THE TIGER'S TAIL
at
AROUND THE WORLD ANNIE'S
FAR NORTH BAR, GAMBLING
CASINO and DANCE HALL

GRAND FIREWORKS DISPLAY
INSIDE AND OUT!

Plenty to Eat—More to Drink
EVERYTHING FREE
But the
GAMBLING, GUZZLING AND DANCING

COME ONE—COME ALL—COME COME—COME ELEVEN

—Whooper, Alaska—10 p.m.—
Thursday, July Fourth

"Wrote that all my myself," explained Around the World Annie, to a quickly thickening ring of admirers. "Ain't bad for an old gal, eh?"

Among the many who paused to read was a stocky, beaverlike man whose eyes recently had borne the shadows of deep worry. All had not gone well for McKenzie Joe during these last few months. He had been forced to watch a tremendous change engulf the young man whom he long ago had come to regard with an overarching affection.

By McKenzie Joe, however, had been determined. He was doing more in that direction now than ever before. At least, he kept his mouth tight when every atom of his supremely honest nature shamed him to have a show-down and proclaim that he was tired of being dealt cards from a stacked deck. Something was wrong; he felt sure of it. His distrust of Kay Joyce and Bruce Kenning amounted almost to mania.

Not that Joe blamed Jack for being blind. It was a wholly natural condition; the North makes a man snow-blind or woman-blind and either affliction is hard to cure. Jack Hammond was not the first person McKenzie Joe had seen take to climbing trees at the will of a woman. He could remember a few experiences of his own. All prospectors can.

The placards announcing Annie's great premiere were still fresh in his mind as he turned into Jeanne's store.

"Listen," he announced, "I need some new duds. Can you get 'em by plane?"

"You'll give me your measurement," Jeanne replied. "I've got an order going in on a plane tomorrow."

"It's easy. Forty-four—short for the coat, thirty-six waist and thirty-one legs for the pants. If the sleeves are too long, I'll turn 'em up." Then, without a break, "How's business?"

"Rushing," answered Jeanne, writing down the measurements.

"Fine," McKenzie Joe looked sourly into the distance, only to turn back as quickly. "Say," he asked, peering hard into her face. "You and me always have been good friends. I think a lot of you."

"If Jack Hammond had any sense..."

"Do you have any particular color you'd like for this suit?" Jeanne broke in.

"Well, I guess not. I'm kind of partial to blue. Not that blue, though. You know. Something kind of lively."

She laughed. "You can see electric light a long ways."

"That's my color. I want 'em to know I'm coming. And get me a couple of shirts. White, I guess. And a tie with some red in it—not all red. I'm going over to Around the World Annie's on the Fourth of July."

"Wearing red, white and blue," chuckled Jeanne.

"Might as well be neighborly," he said, looking around.

"In other words, figuring out a place to test that wild-eyed theory of yours, that the Big Moose swings toward the B.C. hills. That it?"

"Well—since you put it that way."

"And you didn't take me into your confidence?"

"I've tried to talk to you about it a dozen times," the younger man said desparately.

"And I've tried to talk to you out of it. But there's somebody else, stronger."

(To Be Continued)

"But There's Somebody Else, Stronger'n I Am."

grunted and started away.

Jack Hammond was at home when he arrived, with a poster he had ripped from a cabin wall.

"Have you seen it?" he asked.

Mckenzie Joe nodded.

"I've ordered a new suit for it."

Jack stared. "Are you going over?"

The older man pretended a casual air. He reached for his shovel and pick, preparatory to moving up the trail toward the test shot.

"Yeh, I figured I might drop in and slap a few drinks under my belt."

Jack Hammond's jaw fell.

"You're not going to do that, he thought.

Hits Were Scored

Although Windsor Castle Was "Blacklisted" For Test Raid

Historic Windsor Castle, seat of kings since the days of William the Conqueror, was "blacklisted" for 40 minutes in an air-raid test. The first raid on the castle, supposedly built on the site of King Arthur's meeting place with the Knights of the Round Table, resulted in "bombs" scoring hits on the state apartments and the sovereign's entrance.

Wrong Place

An assistant in the post office was trying to explain something to a lady, when a red-faced man dashed in and demanded a stamp. The assistant looked at him, then continued with the lady.

"I say," said the man, "I've a train to catch!"

The man turned to him and said, "Did you say you had a train to catch?"

"I did," came the reply.

"Well," the clerk continued, "it's a railway station you want, not a post office." -Montreal Star.
